Dead?

FIELD MARSHAL ERWIN ROMMEL

Airpower Victim Once Vaunted Desert Fox Is Probably Dead

LIVAROT SUR VIE, Normandy, Aug. 21.—(Delayed)—Field Marshal Erwin Rommel probably is dead—the victim of Allied airpower which brought tragedy after tragedy to his life.
He apparently fell far behind his own front. And, ironically, near the birthplace of an early ancestor of his British adversary—Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery. The once vaunted "desert fox" probably died of a fractured skull about 3 a.m. July 18, in a hospital at Bernay, near the Seine.
There seems little doubt that he was the high German officer seriously injured when an Allied plane sent his car hurtling into a ditch a few miles from here on the afternoon of July 17th.
Also, all the evidence from the man who first treated him to German officers themselves, indicates: That Rommel died without ever regaining consciousness.
That the Germans made great efforts to keep his death a secret, even to assuring a few in the

One Good Blow Will Finish War

By ROGER D. GREENE

WITH BRITISH FORCES ADVANCING TOWARD THE SEINE, Aug. 22.—(AP)—A British headquarters officer said today that "one good sledgehammer blow by the Russians, coupled with our efforts in the west, will finish" the war with Germany.
"The days of great battle in France are ended," the officer declared. "The rest of the war for Germany is merely a fight for time—time for Hitler."

Yesterday, Gen. Montgomery declared the "end of the war is in sight."
Intelligence reports said the Germans already had turned blue on the Maginot line about face on the onrushing Allied armies.
The British officer said that never again can Germany put into the field an army of armor such as the 7th army which the Allies forces have broken up in the "battle of the Normandy bulge."

Trapped Germans Decide to Fight

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 22.—(CP Cable)—The German 7th Army commanders, remnants of whose encircled forces still are trying to escape from the area southeast of Falaise, held a conference inside the Allied ring Sunday night to decide if they should surrender with all their troops or keep trying to break out.
The decision, possibly influenced by SS (Elite troops) representatives at the conference of senior officers, was to keep fighting.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—Soviet armored forces captured the Romanian stronghold of Iasi and swept down on Bucharest and the Ploesti oil fields on a 120-mile front today, Berlin reported, while Germans in the north launched a bloody counter-offensive below Riga in an all-out attempt to widen and hold an escape corridor for their trapped Baltic armies.

The Germans destroyed military installations and abandoned Iasi, a DNB news agency commentator reported, after Russian tank and infantry formations followed up a heavy artillery barrage with thrusts on both sides of the town.

Bitter fighting was in progress along the southern front extending from Targu-Frumos, 27 miles northeast of Iasi, to Tighina, 90 miles southeast of Iasi. The stronghold the Germans admitted abandoning is the gateway to Galati Gap, 100 miles to the southwest, and to Bucharest and Ploesti, approximately another 100 miles beyond.

COUNTER-OFFENSIVE
In a desperate attempt to rescue their Baltic armies in the north, the Germans hurled six additional panzer divisions—perhaps 60,000 men and 900 tanks—into the counter-offensive below Riga, Moscow dispatches said today.

Third of War New Prisoner Exchange Set For September

OTTAWA, Aug. 22.—(CP)—An exchange of seriously ill and wounded prisoners and surplus protected personnel between Germany and the Allied countries will take place early in September at Goteborg, Sweden, the external affairs department announced last night.

There will be an exchange of British and German civilians at Goteborg on the same day.
German prisoners from Canada and the United States will leave New York this week on the exchange ship Gripsholm.

LISTS NOT AVAILABLE
No information is available on the number of Canadian prisoners of war and civilians who may be repatriated and it is not expected lists will be received until the repatriates reach Goteborg.

The department said next-of-kin of repatriates belonging to the armed forces will be notified as soon as the nominal roll is received. The external affairs department will notify next-of-kin of civilian repatriates.

The exchange ship for civilian repatriates will be the Droettningholm.
The exchange will be the third of its kind since the start of the war. The first took place at Goteborg in October, 1943, and the second, when a number of Canadians came out of Germany, took place at Barcelona early this year.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The Swedish repatriation liner Gripsholm will leave New York within a couple of days for another exchange of prisoners with Germany at Goteborg, Sweden, about Sept. 9 the United States state and war department announced last night.

ROME, Aug. 22.—Franco-American forces completed the encirclement of the big naval base of Toulon, thrust to within eight miles of Marseille and drove 60 miles inland today in a series of fast-breaking advances that Maj. Gen. Alexander Patch proclaimed had set the stage for a "decisive" victory.

Vienna, German Silesia Raided

LONDON, Aug. 22.—A fleet of approximately 750 Fortresses and Liberators based in Italy raided targets in the Vienna area and upper German Silesia today, and for the first time in two weeks the Allied raiders encountered strong resistance from enemy aircraft.

Numerous aerial combats occurred over the target areas, but Rome dispatches said that the results had not been tabulated late today. The bombers also fought their way through intense flak to bomb by instruments enemy objectives protected by dense smoke screens.

The formations were escorted by fighter planes, which shot down an unannounced number of the enemy interceptors.

The raid from Italy was carried out as channel weather, officially described as "trifling", virtually halted aerial operations from Britain and Normandy for the second straight day.

Allies Tighten Huge Noose Around Enemy South of the Seine

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, AEF, Aug. 22.—The escape corridor for the German 7th Army in Normandy retreating before re-grouped British and Canadian armies was narrowed to 60 miles today as American troops opened a new offensive today along the south bank of the Seine headed towards the channel ports.

"The British and Canadian armies are on the move again," a high staff officer told British United Press correspondent Richard D. McMillan at the front and supreme headquarters estimated that the now-obliterated Falaise pocket would yield 100,000 Germans, dead, wounded and captured.

A huge noose was tightening swiftly around tens of thousands of battle-weary Nazis south of the Seine as United Kingdom, Canadian and Allied forces drove eastward along the Norman coast to within 12 miles of the Seine estuary and Americans struck out for the coast, while other columns of Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's army drew a ring half way around Paris in a swift thrust to the river Marne.

Between the two converging armies, the remnants of the German army were in headlong flight toward the handful of temporary pontoon bridges thrown across the Seine between Elbeuf and the estuary that offered their last hope of escape.

The Canadian 1st and British 2nd armies, including Polish, Dutch and Belgian units, herded the Nazis into the Seine river funnel from the west, advancing as much as 10 miles.

Heavy Buzz-Bomb Raids on England

LONDON, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The Nazis plastered London and the southern counties with flying bombs throughout the night as rescuers dug by the light of flares for victims of yesterday's robot attacks, which took a tragic toll of life and property.

Despite the severity of the attacks, government efforts to persuade non-essential persons to leave the London area continued to meet with a cool response, apparently due to a growing popular conviction that the end of the war is near.

It was feared a heavy toll of life was taken when one of the robots struck an apartment house last night, burying many of the occupants under the debris. Rescuers still were working with cranes this morning to lift great blocks of masonry.

At Prince Rupert Bracken Says Fish Industry Is Neglected

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C., Aug. 22 (CP)—The federal government's plan for a floor under the fisheries market for the post-war transition period only is inadequate, John Bracken, national leader of the Progressive Conservative party, said in an address here last night.

"We want fair prices for all time after the war, not for the transition period," Mr. Bracken said. "We want to prevent repetition of conditions that existed 12 years after the last war—long after the transition period was over."

"The Liberal government has neglected the outlying points of Canada—this port and those in the east, Halifax and St. John," Mr. Bracken said.

GREAT DEVELOPMENT

He predicted great development for Prince Rupert through the Progressive Conservative party's pledge to the in by railroad immediately after the war, the wealthy northland and Peace River block with the Canadian National Railway at Prince George.

The Progressive Conservative leader promised that the Japanese would never return to the fishing industry in B.C. "The Liberal government has neglected fishing on the west coast by allowing the unfair competition of Japanese and by permitting the dropping of fisheries products prices to unprecedented levels," Mr. Bracken said.

Nazi Seventh Army Reported Fleeing North

units were across the river in force at Mantes and Vernon, 13 miles to the north, and fanning out downstream toward the channel coast and upriver toward Paris.

Far behind the eastbound Allied line, many thousands of Germans were in the trap bounded by Argentan, Chambois and Trun. Some 30,000 Nazi prisoners already had been taken by the British and Canadians in the pocket and headquarters spokesmen were confident that the final count would show 100,000 of the enemy liquidated.

Meanwhile, the battle of Paris appeared to be nearing a showdown as American armor pressed in on the city from three sides against slightly stiffening enemy resistance.

Berlin admitted the loss of Elanque, 14 miles south-southwest of Paris, and Malesherbes, on the Orleans-Fontainebleau highway 35 miles south of the former French capital. Headquarters spokesmen refused to confirm or deny front reports that other American units had plunged across the Seine at Fontainebleau and driven 40 miles north to the Marne at Meaux, 22 miles east-northeast of Paris.

HIGHLY POSSIBLE

The reported thrust appeared highly possible, however, as the Germans were not believed to have sufficient force in the Paris area for an all-out defence of the city.

"Henceforth the Allied armies will be able to advance virtually at will in France," high military spokesmen told a British United Press war correspondent in the field. "There is nothing that can stop us at the present time."

Front reports, which headquarters spokesmen refused to elaborate, said Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's tanks and mechanized infantry had thrust across the Seine in the Fontainebleau area, some 32 miles south of Paris, and were wheeling northward toward the Marne and the battlefields of world war one through feeble resistance.

Coupled with the broad American breakthrough across the Seine northwest of Paris, the new drive drew an armored ring more than half-way around the capital. Inside the city, great fires were reported raging at a score of points and German troops, their last escape corridor closing rapidly behind them, fought for their lives against a swelling army of thousands of French patriots.

With American armor on the march beyond the Seine and United Kingdom, Canadian tanks, infantry and other Allied troops driving hard from the west, the battle of north-western France appeared to have entered the mopping-up stage, bearing out Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's ringing message to his Allied armies yesterday that the enemy had been decisively defeated.

LOST 300,000 MEN

Front reports said a high military authority in the field estimated that the Germans have lost 300,000 men in killed, wounded and captured since D-day, 77 days ago, and headquarters sources indicated the enemy's casualties might be around 500,000.

Under merciless pounding of Allied ground and air forces, the broken German 7th Army and the divisions rushed to its aid by the 15th Army from the Pas de Calais area, were believed to have lost 25,000 to 30,000 motor vehicles destroyed or damaged, and more than 1,000 tanks. In addition, Allied warplanes smashed some 15,000 freight cars supplying the Nazi armies and knocked out 2,000 to 3,000 locomotives.

"We are now out to knock out what is left of the defeated Seventh German Army this side of Paris," British United Press War Correspondent Henry T. Gorrill reported in a front dispatch.

A showdown battle to complete the annihilation of Field Marshal Gunther von Kluge's reeling divisions seemed imminent as Patton's hard-riding columns beyond the Seine fanned out to the north and northeast across the path of the retreating enemy.

CANADIANS ADVANCE

West and south of the Seine, Lt. Gen. H. D. G. Crerar's Canadian 1st Army smashed ahead as much as 7½ miles in a co-ordinated thrust along the channel coast toward the mouth of the Seine and inland on the important highway hub of Lisieux.

Fierce fighting raged in the outskirts of the channel town of Caen but farther to the south Canadians and United Kingdom troops captured Dives-sur-Mer and Douzle and pushed down to Annebault. Bonnebosq, four miles south of Annebault also was taken. Crerar's sweep carried to within 14 miles of the Seine estuary.

On the right flank United Kingdom troops captured Cambremér, eight miles west of Lisieux and drove up the Livarot-Lisieux highway to within one mile south of the latter town, capturing St. Martin de la Lieve.

3,000 PRISONERS
Lt. Gen. Sir Miles Dempsey's British 2nd Army forces slashed deeper into the narrowing Argentan-Chambois-Trun pocket and swept 10 miles beyond the eastern end of the trap to capture Gace. More than 3,000 prisoners were taken by the British from the pocket yesterday, running the bag thus far to almost 40,000 men.

Five American Doughboys Parade of Nazi Wooden Soldiers Toast of Canadian Army

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Five persuasive American soldiers were the toast of the Canadian army today for having marched 750 Germans into the Canadian lines.

Unfortunately the five must be nameless, the censor said, because they had been captured by the Germans and trapped inside the Falaise gap.

But a Canadian officer said they accomplished their feat with fast talk that would impress any main street vacuum cleaner salesman. Fed up with their position, they told the Germans they would get through the lines and see that artillery shelling ceased—if only the Germans would surrender.

The frightened supermen agreed. The Yanks went off and came back after a suitable length of time and told the Germans they had fixed it for the shelling to cease for 20 minutes. The glibble Germans eagerly lined up and the Americans marched them into the Canadian lines.

The cream of the jest is that by chance the shelling did cease during this parade of the wooden soldiers.

in other parts of Canada. It is the fight of all organized labor in the country which must stand united to prevent the recurrence of the depression days of a decade ago," he said.

He added: "If we lost our fight at Halifax, labor organizations will be systematically broken down one by one in Canada."

CLARIFY LEGISLATION
The present labor legislation must be clarified. The department of labor at Ottawa must act; the people of Canada demands it and if the men at the government's helm do not act they must be voted out of power.

"If we of organized labor do not stand united now, it may prove to be too late afterwards as, apparently, big corporations have only one wish: go back to pre-war conditions. And, we all know what they were."

Mr. Shea said that labor wanted security of membership and the "democratic rights of labor" which will "help our boys when they come back victorious."

Speaking of the Halifax shipyards strike, Mr. Shea said the "DOSCO" was dictating to somebody at Ottawa and that dictation must be removed.

PREDICTS HITLER, ARMY TO FIGHT UNTIL THE END

LONDON, Aug. 22.—(CP)—Dr. Eduard Benes predicted last night that Hitler probably never would surrender, but that the German army would "disintegrate into small units which will fight singly to the end." The Czechoslovak president has forecast German trends accurately before. "This will be the real Wagnerian Goetterdaemmerung," he said. "Hitler will drive the German nation to destruction."

Nazi Prisoner of War Recaptured

MEDICINE HAT, ALTA., Aug. 22.—(CP)—Royal Canadian Mounted Police officials announced today that Eckhardt Brosig, 24-year-old German prisoner of war who escaped from the Medicine Hat internment camp some time between 2 p.m. Sunday and 2 p.m. yesterday, has been recaptured. No further details were immediately available.

The young Nazi air force private was missed last night when roll call was made.

A report from Calgary said the prisoner had been recaptured at Cochrane, Ont., and Belgians had entered Cabourg.

(Wilkinson said the Germans remaining inside the pocket were very short of food, ammunition and fuel.)

There was no official word on the progress of the American force below Paris, but German and Allied reports said the northern wing had moved on from the Mantes and Vernon bridgeheads toward Le Havre, 90 miles or less beyond their advanced spearheads.

One American unit already was reported to have reached the Marne at Meaux, 22 miles east-northeast of Paris and 40 miles above the Breakthrough point around Fontainebleau. Another was said to be at Rozoy, 27 miles southeast of the capital.

The German Transocean News Agency reported heavy fighting around Limay, on the northern bank of the Seine opposite Mantes, but field dispatches made it clear that the dazed Nazis were offering only the feeblest resistance.

BREAKTHROUGH UNOPPOSED
The original breakthrough at Mantes, it was revealed, was completely unopposed and the only resistance came after the bridgehead was established, from a handful of tough German troops who fought with mortars and machine guns in a futile attempt to drive the Americans across the river.

Nazi Casualties Top 350,000 Mark In Great Northern France Debacle

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—(CP)—Total German casualties in the great Wehrmacht debacle in Northern France topped the 350,000 mark last night as Allied headquarters in England said that the American 3rd Army in its sweep to Paris had captured, killed or wounded a total of 109,575 Nazis. And thousands more were taken by British, Canadian and American forces in the Normandy bulge battle.

It was revealed that 49,650 Germans had been captured, 11,025 killed and 48,900 wounded in the American 3rd Army drive, and in the battle around the Falaise-Argentan gap an estimated 25,000 Germans had been captured by 12:45 p.m. E.D.T. yesterday.

British, Canadian, Polish and American troops between them captured a total of about 10,000 Germans in the Normandy bulge during the day. Lt. Gen. Dempsey's British 2nd Army alone took 2,000 up to noon, boosting its personal total to 10,000 in the pocket.

Biggest Fish Yet Caught

Ex-Head French Deputies Is Prisoner of Partisans

By WILLIAM MILLER

Distributed by The Canadian Press
DRAGUIGNAN, Southern France, Aug. 22.—One of the biggest fish yet caught in the invasion of southern France is a 71-year-old man identified as Fernand Bouisson. Barrel-shaped, bald-headed, goateed former president of the chamber of deputies.

He was found hiding at the house of a friend four miles from St. Raphael and was jailed pending judicial procedure.

For safety, he was imprisoned at Draguignan, and Sunday the French partisans paraded him and other prisoners for the benefit of the French information service movie cameramen.

It was a bitter pill for the man who was 10 years mayor of Marseille and former national head of the Socialist party. He was paraded with a motley throng of Gestapo spies and one woman whose head had been shaved for consorting with Germans.

Bouisson, who was merchant marine minister in the last war and who became Marshal Petain's information minister, and later joined Marcel Deat in editing the Collaborationist Paris daily L'Oeuvre, kept his head down during the short walk.

Bouisson was premier of France for five days. The cabinet formed May 31, 1935, stayed June 4. He once was a candidate for the presidency of France, but withdrew several times refused to become premier. No word has come out of France under the occupation concerning his activities.

NAZI ADMIRAL IN S. FRANCE ENDS OWN LIFE

By ROBERT VERNILLION

ST. EUTROPE, France, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Admiral Siegfried Wiedner 55-year-old commander of German marine forces in southern France and charged with the defence of naval establishments from Nice to Perpignan, committed suicide in this village at the outskirts of Aix-en-Provence four days before the Allied invasion.

The Admiral's French secretary found the body in his study at noon Aug. 11, after hearing a shot. French resistance leaders said they heard the Germans had planned to kill Wiedner because it was believed he was implicated in an anti-Hitler plotting.

Aerial Assaults On Nippon Bases Reach New Fury

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Southwest Pacific, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Pitching aerial assaults upon the Moluccas and nearby islands to a new intensity, Allied planes delivered the heaviest bombing attacks yet made upon Halmahera and Boeroe islands, headquarters announced today.

Eight Japanese planes caught on the ground at Boeroe were destroyed or damaged.

In other attacks upon the enemy's dwindling shipping lines, nine small Japanese freighters, transports and coastal vessels were sunk or badly damaged, and 10 barges probably destroyed. The raids ranged over a wide area from the Netherlands East Indies to the Philippines.

Nazis Pouring Into Canadian Prison Cages

German army fallen to pieces is the most encouraging sight of the war. Canadians are lined along the muddy roads up which truckload after truckload of Germans have been coming since yesterday morning.

Today their numbers have been larger than ever.

At mealtimes, the Canadians go over to the roadside and prop their mess tins on fence posts so as not to miss any part of the free show. You hear an occasional, "Pick 'em up there, boy!" addressed to the marching prisoners.

Canadian officers say the defeat of the 7th army to which the Canadians contributed by their successful battle of the hinge has been the biggest morale booster since news of the revolt of the German generals. Everybody in the forward Canadian areas is in high spirits and at least temporarily, a lot of the grimness of the early days in France has disappeared.

AIRCRAFT GROUNDED

It was enough today to make everyone forget the gloominess of the weather and the drenching rain that turned fields into mud and made roads slimy and treacherous. Our aircraft were grounded yesterday but that had no effect on the last stages of the destruction of the 7th Army.

The only Germans who want to fight any longer are tough storm-troopers who refuse to believe their army is finished and the nazified officers who represent the only element that wants to keep the ordinary infantry fighting.

The prisoner shuttle service has to operate over roads thick with traffic, bringing in men in dozens of different getups from the light blue of the enemy air force regiment to the dark-jacketed uniforms of the storm troops and panzer soldiers.

SOAKED AND MUDDY

The prisoners are soaked and muddy. Hundreds of German wounded have been given medical treatment and placed in ambulances that take them to casualty clearing stations and hospitals. Some of them have the attendance of their own medical officers, dressed in once-natty uniforms.

In the small area of "the bottle" that remains there is complete disorder. Rolling German convoys ignore all military rules of single-line traffic. Soldiers in trucks and mounted on carts are terror-stricken and hardly know which way to go. The small stretch of road left to them is littered with their dead comrades, their dead horses, their exploded and smashed transport.

There is little food. The Germans have eaten the odd bits of food they carried in their pockets and now go into the fields and dig up half-sized potatoes, shake the green apples from the trees and, when they can, shoot the scurrying hens in farmyards.

They look forward to a safe arrival in Allied lines, where their disarmament has left piles of rifles, pistols, binoculars, cameras, maps, cases, old letters and heaps of other equipment.

NEXT PHASES

While the sometimes awesome scene of collapse of this army is unfolding, the forces of the Canadian army are getting ready for the next phases of the war in France.

New tanks are being hauled up on giant transporters, guns are being moved about and infantry formations swung around for their part in the developing push to the Seine.

Tented hospitals with their truckloads of equipment are being packed up and moved forward to keep up with the war and make ambulance hauls shorter. Supply dumps are being shifted ahead.

Says Full Story Of Pearl Harbor To Shock World

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Rep. Ralph Church (Rep., Ill.) told the House of Representatives yesterday that the full story of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, Dec. 7, 1941, "will shock the world," and added:

"Washington was to blame." Mr. Church spoke in connection with a public letter addressed to Sen. Harry Truman (Dem., Mo.) by Rear Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, who was removed from active command after the Pearl Harbor disaster. Admiral Kimmel told Sen. Truman a report on the attack prepared under the chairmanship of Associate Justice Owen J. Roberts of the Supreme court "does not contain the basic truths of the Pearl Harbor catastrophe," and that a magazine article by Mr. Truman contained "false statements."

Moving Eastward Canucks Roll Back German Rearguard

By ROSS MUNRO

WITH THE CANADIAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 22.—(CP)—As Gen. Montgomery issued a dramatic message to Allied troops in northwest France telling them "the end of the war is in sight," Canadian Army forces were on the move eastward, steadily rolling back German rearguard positions.

A British tank formation struck out from its bridgehead across the Vie river at Livarot and advanced in a driving rain across the Touques river to the village of St. Cyr Du Roncer eight miles southeast of Lisieux.

Another British force reached St. Martin de la Lieve, two miles south of Lisieux on the Touques river, and still more British troops closed in on the city from the west and northwest. Others are on the road to Pont de Veque 12 miles north of Lisieux.

APPROACH VIMOUTIER

With the Falaise pocket now shrunk to an area four miles square south of Trun and the whole situation under control, Canadian troops are joining in the swing east and infantry and armored cars are approaching Vimoutier, southeast of Livarot.

These forces under Lt. Gen. Crerar's command are sweeping the Germans along their front into a new pocket against the Seine, the banks of which have been reached by the Americans.

Gen. Montgomery's message confirming the Allied victory in north-west France as "definite, complete, decisive" was read to the troops last night along the surging front. His promise that there were "many surprises" in store for the fleeing Germans was particularly good news for the Canadians, who played such an important role in sealing the trap of Trun.

IN HIGH SPIRITS

The message put the Canadians in high spirits as they turned to new assignments or proceeded with the mop-up of the Trun pocket where the remaining Germans were showing little fight.

Canadians have taken so many prisoners in the last few days that they have had to turn some of them over to the Americans to clear them from the battle area so they will not hinder operations.

A divisional general was taken yesterday but most of the prisoners are from a hodge-podge of infantry and armored units. Infantrymen are particularly ready to give up to anyone who gets close enough for them to shout to.

MANY CATEGORIES

Men from scores of miscellaneous units have been captured, indicating how completely the 7th Army was caught and destroyed. There are men from bakery companies, training units, flak regiments, German air force dressing stations, supply units—all units which would ordinarily be in rear areas.

Navy Ace

Just returned to the U.S. is Lt. Alexander Vraciu, Jr., above, after a solid year of Pacific combat, during which he downed 19 Jap planes, destroyed 18 on the ground and sank a 7,000-ton enemy transport to become the Navy's leading fighter pilot. The 25-year-old flyer, from East Chicago, Ind., returned with famed Air Group 16, credited with downing 135 enemy aircraft.

RECTAL SORENESS AND PILE TORTURE QUICKLY RELIEVED

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning, and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from Merrick Drug Stores or any drugist, and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost. If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your drugist will gladly return your money.

Nazis Fight Patriots With Wooden Bullets

BEHIND GERMAN LINES IN FRANCE (Via Switzerland, Aug. 22.—(CP)—At Le Fayet, in the Savoy mountains, the Partisans had a close shave. Elsewhere the Germans were either annihilated or they capitulated when the situation became hopeless. But at Le Fayet the Germans went on fighting, largely with bullets made of wood. I have a handful as souvenirs. They make a big, scaring blast, but they scatter into splinters before they reach you.

Arrested

MARSHAL PHILIPPE PETAIN

Marshal Petain Is Arrested by German Gestapo

GENEVA, Aug. 22.—(AP)—German secret police arrested Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, French "chief of state," at his residence and headquarters at the Hotel Du Parc in Vichy today.

The 83-year-old marshal, hero of Verdun in the First Great War and head of the German-dominated Vichy government of France since 1940, was reported seized Sunday morning along with a number of associates.

Others reported arrested were a Gen. Bridoux, possibly the Vichy war secretary Lt.-Gen. Eugene Bridoux; an admiral Blehaut; one Rochat, general secretary of the ministry of foreign affairs; and Bernard Menetrel, private secretary to Petain.

REFUSED REQUEST

The most reliable sources said that Petain refused a German request to go with Pierre Laval, chief of government, to the new provisional capital at Belfort, and that the old marshal was summarily arrested by force. Where he is was not known absolutely, although most guesses were that he is in Germany. Thus the old chief of state became officially what he has been in effect for a long time—a prisoner of the Nazis.

The Vichy regime is "finished," the Basel National Zeitung commented. The Swiss minister to Vichy is returning home and relations concerning France will henceforth be conducted through Berlin.

ATTACK VICHY

Reports from the French underground said the Maquis were attacking Vichy at about the time of the seizures, had actually taken parts of the provisional capital, and were arresting collaborators.

Nazi Helps

WITH THE CANADIAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 22.—(CP)—Latest prisoner story going the rounds last night as the Canadians gathered up thousands of exhausted German soldiers was of a captured German officer in Trun who helped direct traffic when Canadian convoys moving forward got mixed up with captured German vehicles going back.

When the Maquis issued the German commander an ultimatum to surrender or they would storm the town, the commander answered that if they did, he would shoot 40 French men and women held as hostages. The French troops hesitated to attack.

An American officer, who advises the partisans, had a bright idea. He sent a personal ultimatum to the German commander, saying he had a company of American paratroopers who, as German propaganda said, were notoriously disrespectful of French lives, and they would assault and kill every German in the town, regardless of the consequences.

ARTILLERY EN ROUTE

The German commander thereupon reconsidered and sent a message back saying he would like to negotiate with the American and his staff. Meanwhile, unknown to the German commander, a column of 14 German Nazi lorries with artillery was en route to relieve him at Le Fayet.

As time shortened, the American got another bright idea. He hustled together four Frenchmen who donned four British uniforms which had been parachuted down recently, and he met the German commander in a forest.

When the Germans saw the five khaki uniforms—the men of the Maquis in France were mostly grey uniforms—he surrendered the town, and the main force of the Maquis was then turned against the advancing German column and destroyed it.

WITNESSED TRAGEDY

In Ancey, we witnessed an almost Shakespearean tragedy. In the Rue Grenette we heard a gasp from one of the houses. Gendarmes rushed into the house and up the stairs. Before they reached the door of the room, a second shot rang out. When they opened one door they found the last Gestapo officer whom they had not yet caught lying on the floor with his mistress in a pool of blood. The SS officer had shot her and himself.

Papal Secretary Of State Dies

ROME, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Luigi Cardinal Maglione, papal secretary of state, died last night at the Prince of Piedmont hospital in Naples after an illness of several weeks.

He was 67 years old. Vatican officials said death resulted from neuritis. They disclosed that the cardinal had left the Vatican for his home in Casoria near Naples in July on the advice of physicians after three years of unremitting service.

He had been a cardinal since 1935 and papal secretary of state since 1939. Previously he had served as papal nuncio in Paris and Switzerland.

New Brunswick City Is Menaced By Forest Fire

MONCTON, N.B., Aug. 22.—(CP)—Residents in the west-end of the city last night could see the red glow of a forest fire burning within a mile of the city limits and P. M. Harrison of the New Brunswick forestry service, who is directing the firefighting operations, said the fire is "very dangerous" to the city.

The fire was burning over an area about nine miles long from east to west and two miles from north to south. Last night a high westerly wind which fanned the flames during the day had subsided but Mr. Harrison said a 20-mile west wind which might carry the flames to the city was forecast for Tuesday.

Edmonton Girls Help Fill Shells at "Ajax"

Because Canadian and United Nations forces in France and Italy need more and more shells to blast out Nazi defences and help save Allied lives, women and girls from across Canada are being urged to volunteer as shell-fillers in plants in Ontario and Quebec. Hundreds have already responded to the appeal for 10,000 shell-fillers, 7,000 women and 3,000 men, but there is still an urgent need for more. Above are pictured some of the girls from east and west who have enrolled at the shell-filling plant at Ajax, near Pickering, Ontario. Some girls ride out in buses every day from Toronto, others live in attractive, modern, residences right at the plant. For all of them, in addition to a vital war job to do, there are leisure-time activities that keep them healthy, happy and eager to keep those shells moving. Pictures show, left: Evelyn Waldref, from the Peace River, Alta., on the archery range at Ajax; upper right: two Ajax tennis stars, Viola Nordal, from Regina, and Sally Bowman, of Barrie, Ont.; lower right: three western school-teachers at the horseshoe pits, Mary Connelly, of Edmonton, Alta., Vivien Donvito, of Calgary, and Marie Brueyroux, of Edmonton. Women and girls without home responsibilities who are not already engaged in essential war occupations should contact their local National Selective Service office and volunteer to work in shell-filling plants. Transportation to the plants in Ontario and Quebec will be provided by Selective Service.

Once Vaunted Desert Fox Is Probably Dead

know that the "Desert Fox" is all right.

That Rommel's body was flown secretly to Berlin for burial. The best evidence is furnished by a "vigorous, thick-haired, ruddy-cheeked man of about 50 to 55, with a fully grey French beard, and sparkling blue eyes. He is Marcel Lesene, the mayor of Livarot, who is also the local druggist and the man who first treated the marshal's injuries.

TOLD STORY

In a little room of Livarot's cobble main street, Lesene told me the story while the great machines of Allied blitzkrieg thundered past and the big guns rumbled in the hills beyond.

Two weeks before the accident, he said, Rommel had a warning of what was coming. That was when trucks behind his car were wrecked by a plane.

Rommel's car pushed up the main street from outside the city. Lesene explained, and he hid behind the church.

About 6 p.m. on July 17, he said a car pulled up at the crossroads, in front of the war memorial, and a distraught tank officer jumped out, inquiring for the village doctor. Lesene gave him directions, but the officer seemed confused and the group dashed off to Vi-mouterie. Half an hour later, someone informed Lesene at a cafe that an officer and two other people were injured and were unable to find a doctor.

"I decided to go myself," Lesene said.

"The officer lay on a stretcher in the vestibule at the hospital and sisters were washing his face. I noticed he was a general because of the red tabs and broad red stripes on his breeches and high boots.

"An officer told me we would have to put him in another room and I had him carried to the dining room next door. Then I noticed he had a large open wound above the left eye and was bleeding from the ears. This convinced me he had a fractured skull. He was not wounded by bullets, but his face was completely swollen and disfigured.

"I started to bind the wounds and told the officer he must be taken to a hospital where there was a doctor. I took his pulse, which was weak, and gave him two injections of etherized camphor. In doing so I removed his wrist-watch.

"The commander of the local garrison then had the seat removed from his car and the wounded general placed in there. The soldiers said it was Rommel, 'our marshal, our marshal.'

BOTH CONVINCED

"The village policeman then noticed two crossed marshal's batons on his epaulettes and remembering photographs of Rommel, we both felt convinced it was he.

Lesene said he learned later that Rommel's car crashed after the driver's shoulder had been torn off in the Allied plane attack. The marshal either was injured in the

French Mademoiselles Out Hunting Germans With Pistols, Grenades

By HAL BOYLE

WITH AMERICAN TROOPS IN BRITAIN, Aug. 7.—(Delayed by Censorship)—(AP)—French mademoiselles armed with enemy Luger pistols and carrying potato masher grenades in their belts, have joined French resistance leaders in Brittany's greatest outdoor sport—capturing Germans.

Some of the women lug rifles on their shoulders and speed down secondary roads searching out isolated pockets of Germans. "I met two of these French gals yesterday packing Luger pistols," said Lt. Leonard Hughes of Fond Du Lac, Wis., supply officer. "We have been trying to get our hands on some of those Luger pistols ever since we landed—and here were these gals packing a pair of 'em. We tried to trade them cigarettes for their pistols but they wouldn't do it. They wanted to keep them to kill Germans."

"Those women are amazing. They fix up old trucks and go out hunting the way our girls back home set out for the movies. They get out in front and lead our supply trucks for hours, checking roads ahead to see if they are clear."

Suspect Sabotage In Forest Fires

OTTAWA, Aug. 22.—(CP)—For 35 hours censorship held up news of the arrest of two men on charges of setting forest fires in New Brunswick. It was disclosed yesterday. Censorship officials said this unusual procedure was followed because it was believed sabotage might be involved and therefore the security factor arose.

The New Brunswick attorney-general's department requested censorship officials Friday to withhold from publication the arrest of the men until Royal Canadian Mounted police completed an investigation.

The men, Wilfred Sullivan, a Fredericton taxi driver, and Gerald Gill, North Devon, N.B., appeared in court Saturday and were remanded until Thursday.

"The RCMP said there was good suspicion of arson and wanted to check the source of other fires before the arrests were published," said Warren Baldwin, chief censor here. "Under the circumstances they also had to consider possible sabotage."

Petain May "Slip" Into Retirement

LONDON, Aug. 22.—(CP)—While Frenchmen who have collaborated with the Nazis were reported fleeing toward Germany, the Daily Express said editorially today that "there is talk in Britain of letting Marshal Petain slip gracefully into retirement. DIED DURING NIGHT

The next day, someone from Bernay told Lesene that the general who had been brought from Livarot "died during the night."

A village policeman, who had been listening to Lesene's story, broke in:

"A German officer, who later was treated at the hospital, told one of the sisters that Rommel died at 3 a.m. the next morning at Bernay and his body flown to Berlin."

Luxury After Trenches

Canucks Have Leave Centre In Fine Old French Chateau

By ROSS MUNRO

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, Aug. 22.—(CP)—In a fine old chateau on a river here in Normandy, the Canadians have established a short-leave centre where troops from the battlefield can get sleep, rest, relaxation, good food and recreation. About 220 other ranks and 50 officers can be accommodated at a time for four-day periods.

This spot is a paradise for battle-weary fighting men. It is a green, luxuriant park with the graceful chateau in a grove of trees. There are showers where the men can get a good wash and down on the river behind the chateau there is a swimming hole better than the one in the creek back home.

A mobile laundry is in the camp and the men's uniforms and clothes are cleaned. Everyone has a bed to sleep on—captured German army beds—and it is a real luxury after weeks of trying to sleep in a slit trench under enemy fire.

MOVIES ARE SHOWN

Movies are shown in a marquee tent called the "Capitol Theatre" and there are stage shows as well. An army band plays frequently and dances are being organized with Canadian nursing sisters as partners for the soldiers.

The camp has its own hostess, a Frenchwoman from Caen, who was teaching in a girls' school there, and there are 11 French waitresses in the messes. But they don't call them messes. The sergeants dining tent is called the "Astor Restaurant" and the men's is the "Acme Cafe." There are even white table cloths.

Every effort is made to get away from army routine and give the men a chance to relax. There are no parades and they can get away any time of the day. Even meal hours are not too rigid. Capt. J. A. L. Wood of Victoria is catering officer at the centre and among the N.C.O.'s are Cpl. J. Lisoway of Winnipeg and CSM J. Robson of Calgary.

Soviet Armored Forces Capture Iasi Stronghold

the Red army was "firing on and attacking the soil of East Prussia," but the broadcast did not say specifically that the Russians actually had crossed the frontier.

(A BBC broadcast beamed to Spain and heard by The British United Press in New York said the Russians had crossed the border, but gave no details.)

A Soviet communiqué last night acknowledged that the Germans at frightful cost had blasted a narrow corridor along the coast of the Gulf of Riga and re-established contact with elements of some 30 German divisions encircled in Latvia and Estonia.

(A Polish communiqué issued in London said Polish patriot forces still were holding out in a number of strongpoints inside Warsaw and that heavy fighting continued today.)

SHIFT ATTACKS

After re-capturing Tukums, 33 miles west of Riga and key to the coastal corridor, the Germans shifted the main weight of their attacks southward along a 55-mile front stretching from Jelgava, 27 miles south of Riga, to Siauliai.

Although attacking with as many as 400 tanks at one time in a try for a knockout blow that would complete the crumbling of the Soviet wall fencing in the Baltic armies, the Germans failed to more than dent the Russian lines.

Further south, Soviet tanks and infantry plunged through a 22-mile-wide gap in the German defences northeast of Warsaw and prepared to smash across the Bug river in a drive outflanking the Polish capital from the north.

Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's 1st White Russian Army reached or neared the south bank of the Bug on a broad front in a major breakthrough of German armor points along the Warsaw-Bialystok railway, capturing more than 50 towns and villages in advances of three to nine miles.

DELAY ANNOUNCEMENT

(Moscow dispatches failed to mention the new Soviet offensive in Romania reported in a German communiqué yesterday. However, the Russians customarily delay announcing a new offensive until a major breakthrough or victory has been won.)

(A Romanian communiqué recorded by U.S. monitors said bitter fighting was under way along a front running from the southern edge of Iasi northeast to Targu-Frumos and in an area southwest of Tichina. The Romanians also said that Soviet planes raided Constanta and Sulina for the second straight day.)

(Berlin said the Russians had established a new bridgehead across the Vistula River 75 miles southeast of Warsaw and were advancing toward Radom, 55 miles south of the Polish capital.)

Allies Prepare Stage For South France Victory

285 square miles a day liberated in the past week.

French tanks and infantry, covered by a barrage from a British fleet of two battleships, six cruisers and swarms of bombers, completed the encirclement of Toulon with the capture of Bandol, on the Mediterranean coast seven and a half miles west of Toulon.

Doomed to death or surrender, the German garrison of perhaps three army divisions and assorted marine units nevertheless was putting up a back-to-the-wall fight for the naval base and stalled advancing French infantry in the northern and western outskirts with a heavy artillery and mortar barrage.

DEFLECTED GUNS

The Germans deflected their anti-aircraft guns and added their fire to that of coastal batteries ringing up to 340 millimeters in caliber and the guns of crippled French warships in the harbor. Swept by murderous crossfire, the French dug in temporarily along the railway skirting the northern edge of Toulon.

Front dispatches disclosed that the Toulon batteries were so deeply emplaced that a direct hit scored by a French warship on one of the base's heavy gun turrets failed to silence it. Some of the turrets or casemates were protected by six feet of steel and concrete.

YANKS NEAR MARSEILLE

Northwest of Toulon, American forces driving along the main highway to Marseille stabbed into the outskirts of Aubagne and fanned out either side of the town to within eight miles east of Marseille, France's largest port and second largest city.

Fifteen miles north of Marseille, American forces cut the main escape route from the port with the capture of the communications hub of Aix after a two-day battle.

The Americans then fanned out north toward Avignon and the Rhone Valley, west toward the large salt inlet of the sea, Etang (Pond) De Berre and south toward Marseille. Latest reports placed the Americans at least two miles west of Aix.

PERTUIS TAKEN

Pertuis, 11½ miles north of Aix and 37 miles southeast of Avignon, also was captured, while other forces thrusting inland through the hills and mountains along the northern perimeter of the bridgehead seized Grainbois, six miles northeast of Pertuis; St. Julien, 27 miles north of Draguignan, and Barre, nine miles west of St. Julien and 60 miles from the coast.

American forces made a second crossing of the Durance river, a tributary of the Rhone, to seize Barre. They already were across the Durance at Pertuis.

The Americans were advancing so rapidly inland that in many places they had outrun their ration trucks and were subsisting chiefly on cantaloupes and tomatoes taken from gardens along the roads.

We Condescend

Blazoned in the Vancouver public prints is the reproduction of an impressive document by which the city of Vancouver "adopts" the city of Odessa.

Now these "adoptions" of Russian cities by Canadian cities spring from genuine admiration and respect. They arise from a commendable desire to help those Old World communities which have been stricken in war.

But surely, in heaven's name, we don't have to do it with such absurd condescension.

Vancouver is a city of 305,000 people. Odessa is a city of 604,000 people. Vancouver is something more than 75 years old. Odessa was founded by the Greeks about 600 B.C. The modern city dates from 1396.

And yet our civic patriarch of the Pacific unbends, in a gorgeously bedizened scroll, to "adopt" a community which was a centre of culture when the first barbaric skeletons were being rolled into the Great Fraser Midden.

Canadians are a kindly and a tolerant people, on the whole. They possess a great natural fund of sympathy. And their hearts do go out to the war sufferers of other lands.

But even in these cordial operations it is necessary for us to assume a patronizing attitude. We cannot fraternize, we must "adopt".

Perhaps one of the first essentials in the achievement of our nationhood should be to throw off some of the most offensive characteristics of the nouveaux riches.

This is one of them.

Edmonton's Flower Show

The Edmonton Horticultural Society's annual show of flowers and vegetables opens tonight in the market building and continues until Wednesday night. Every citizen interested in the welfare of this community should be there.

For the Edmonton Horticultural Society is a much more useful institution than its modesty allows it to admit.

Year after year it goes on giving advice to amateur gardeners on the care of garden produce. As a result, the quality of that produce rises steadily. Edmonton flowers and vegetables reach an unusually high standard, as may be seen by those who regularly attend the shows.

The Edmonton Horticultural Society does a fine job in this community. It deserves the support of every citizen.

A Great Artist

The death of Sir Henry Wood in London at the age of 75 brings to an end one of the most notable careers in music in the history of the world.

That tribute is paid not necessarily because of Sir Henry's musicianship, because there have been and are much greater conductors. But it is paid because, more than any other man, Sir Henry Wood contributed to the movement to bring good music to the masses.

He introduced the delights of the greatest music to millions of people who, without his aid, would never have heard a bar of it. His famous "promenade" concerts in Queen's Hall, London, were patronized by laborers who rubbed shoulders with peers. Sir Henry was the "great commoner" of melody.

It was his belief that music is a tremendous civilizing agency and that it is the right of every man to have ready access to this agency. It was his work to make Chopin and Bach and Brahms and Beethoven the familiar good friends of the shop girl, the stevedore and the timid clerk.

The movement instituted by Sir Henry Wood has grown of course, tremendously. In the past two years, the English council for the Encouragement of Music and the Arts has given more than 8,000 concerts, of which 4,543 were given in factory canteens and 2,476 in villages and small towns. These reached, it is estimated, a total audience of more than a million people.

This is the sort of thing Sir Henry Wood encouraged. It is a splendid thing to be a great humanitarian. Sir Henry Wood, gracefully and successfully, managed to be the two.

Italian Greed

When Italy surrendered in September last year and it became evident that the United Nations did not propose to treat her as a conquered enemy but as a sort of a pseudo-partner, many voices were raised in warning against this course.

It was pointed out that Italy revolted against Mussolini, not because of any intrinsic hatred of fascism, but because the Italians were anxious to repudiate an alliance and a form of government which would place them on the losing side in the war.

It was recalled that Italy went into the last war on the Allied side for what she could get out of it and that when greedy and pretentious proposals to be permitted to overrun the Adriatic were denied at Versailles, she walked out of the peace conference in a huff.

The forebodings of last September seem to be justified in the current demand of Italy that she be allowed to retain her colonies. Speaking for the Italian government, Count Carlo Sforza demands that unless other countries are willing to surrender their colonies to an international administration, Italy must receive her colonies back.

This is a strange tone for a nation whose aviators bombed London hospitals and whose despicable betrayal of France placed her among the ranks of the most treacherous Axis aggressors. Count Sforza seems to have forgotten that Italy is a conquered enemy and exists only at the will of her conquerors.

The truth is that Italian greed destroys the Italian sense of proportion. Modern Italy has all the insatiable avarice of the Roman Empire without the Empire's courage and capacity.

For Value Received

The fact that Britain and the United States are about to remove the export bans imposed on Turkey several months ago would seem to indicate that the Turks, at long last, have made some sort of a decision about getting into the war. It is said that military items are among the articles shortly to be shipped to that country.

Anything that will shorten the war and help to bring Canadian boys safely home again will be applauded in this country. But as fervently as that step is desired, the national stomach retches at the idea of buying allies to help expedite the coming of peace.

And that, of course, is what the Turkish alliance, if there really is such a thing, means. If the Turks had been impelled by principle to oppose the Nazis, they would have done so long ago instead of bargaining and horse-trading with ourselves and the astute Franz von Papen.

If they come into the war they will come in as mercenaries and nothing else. They will give their assistance for value received. Mustapha Kemal Pasha was able to "modernize" them, it seems, in everything but their hearts.

At the recent promotion examinations a Moose Jaw child answered thus to the question, "Sketch the life of Sir John Macdonald": "Sir John was the first governor-general of Canada; he died in 1892 at the battle of Cut Knife, fighting against Montcalm, an Indian chief who was leader of the first Riel rebellion."

Bears are very plentiful just now along the Athabasca, feeding on the raspberries on the banks along the river. Richard Secord shot a 400-pounder on the way down from Chipewyan, and Colin Fraser shot seven.

Dr. J. G. Calder of Medicine Hat proposes to make an exploration trip in the course of which he will trace the Battle Creek from its mouth to the source in the Cypress Hills, where Indian traditions say there are immense deposits of gold to be found.

Needs of the Canadian Indian

War Has Drawn the Red Man Into the National Life

By B. T. RICHARDSON

OTTAWA—A brief debate on the last day of the session of parliament on Indian affairs disclosed that a steady awakening of Canadian interest and concern over the problem of Indians is under way. Earlier, Indian affairs were examined by the committee on reconstruction and re-establishment. It was evident, from the debate in the house, that the problem extends far beyond the post-war rehabilitation of Indian veterans of Canada's armed services; though that is probably the point at which a start can be made in reshaping Indian policy which has become obsolete and in need of reform.

"There is no doubt in my mind," said Mr. Crerar, when his departmental estimates for the Indian affairs branch were under discussion, "that the whole Indian Act needs a thorough revision." He disclosed that work on such a revision has begun, and he expressed the hope the next parliament would undertake the work.

The Indians of Canada, as Mr. Edwards, the Calgary West Liberal remarked, are the least vocal element of the Canadian population. That the Indian has suffered neglect, several M.P.s agreed. Pointed speeches on the problem were made by Mr. Edwards, Mr. Bryce (CCF, Selkirk), and Mr. Castleden (CCF, Yorkton). That Canadian Indian policy suffers badly in comparison with recent progressive American policy, students of the problem agree. Administration of Indian policy, as it has developed in Canada, is one thing, and high marks may be given to Indian affairs officials on many grounds. But the policy itself, as the minister indicated, needs complete revision.

Indian policy regards the native peoples of Canada as perpetual wards of the government. The Indian is treated like a museum piece, a quaint figure, a symbol of the picturesque days of the frontier. It would be to regard the North American Indian as an intelligent human being capable of development and of adaptation to the white man's civilization in which he must live.

The Indian is segregated on reservations, walled in by a paternalistic treatment which rarely allows him full spiritual development and directly denies him the free status of citizenship. Past parliaments have been apathetic, and the public has given little thought to Indian affairs. In New Zealand, as a visitor to that dominion finds, the native Maoris have achieved, after long tribulation, equality of citizenship and opportunity. The Maoris have four members of parliament; the Canadian Indians do not even have a vote. The Maoris already occupy a place in their country which the Atlantic Charter envisages for all minorities and races.

As a result of the war, the Indian population has become more fully drawn into Canadian life than at any previous time. The old "basket and beadwork" level of employment, which can never rise above a poverty level, has been displaced in some cases at least by full employment in essential work. As Miss Kathleen Moody, of the Indian affairs branch, told the reconstruction committee, many Indians regard handicraft projects as an attempt to keep them tied to old modes of living.

There are 118,000 Indians in Canada, and 2,383 of them are serving in the military forces. Most of them live on reservations which, under modern conditions, will not sustain a rising standard of living. Unless Indian policy is transformed, the Indians can never be anything but wards. But even more important, the weakness of Canada's treatment of its Indians lies in the educational system available to Indians.

There are 352 schools to which Canadian Indians go, and the pupil enrolment is only 16,800. Of

Cookery Fashions Have Changed

Fifty-Year-Old Cook Book Tells of Five-Course Breakfast

By MARY ALICE QUAYNE

Once in a lifetime, and certainly not more than twice at the very most, it is really amusing to have Grandma show you through the family album. Everyone knows that fashions are fickle, but how about appetites?

If you consult a 50-year-old cook book as I did the other day, you will be certain about changing styles in food. And if your husband begins to long for one of those meals like his grandmother used to serve, make sure there is a large supply of bicarbonate of soda on hand.

We just don't eat as they did a half-century ago, at least not according to those "planned" meals. Apparently a good cook then was known by the "groaning" table she set. The dinner tables must have been sturdily constructed to withstand the results of menu-planning back in 1894.

Here is an ordinary Sunday breakfast: Baked beans with pork, Boston brown bread and omelet. And for a July Monday morning, just a snack: rice, apples, batter cakes, broiled ham, tomato omelet, sliced cucumbers and coffee.

But this Saturday breakfast would be too much for even husky threshers: melons, hominy, breakfast puffs (whatever they are), stewed kidneys, radishes, onions, and coffee.

And when I came across the Easter Sunday morning breakfast, I realized why so many went to sleep in church. This was the difficult suggestion: broiled sirloin steak, French rolls, young radishes, Saratoga potatoes, boiled eggs, waffles and honey.

Wonderful Capacity

What has happened to our twenty-first century appetite? We are definitely slipping on food, our stomachs seem to lack their wonderful capacity and we couldn't make an impression on such a meal, that is if we want to live very long.

Our ancestors really had a breakfast, but did they take smaller meals later in the day? They did not! The dinner menu suggested for the Saturday when stewed kidneys were served for breakfast included chicken soup, or green turtle with Italian paste, fish boiled with drawn butter, whole potatoes, ad paragus with egg sauce, coconut pudding and jelly.

A recipe for "Fruit Cake Superior" required 1½ pounds of butter, one pound of white sugar, ¾ pound of brown sugar, four pounds of raisins, five pounds of currants, two pounds citron shaved fine, two pounds sifted flour, two nutmegs and equal quantities of mace, and one gill of brandy.

After consulting some other parts of the book, I was in for more astonishment. It is a queer mixture of old-fashioned ideas and day-after-tomorrow suggestions.

Listen to this: "A dirty kitchen and bad cooking have driven many a husband and son, and many a daughter, too, from a home that should have been a refuge from temptation."

Dietitians nowadays would be interested in this tidbit: "It is far better for the digestion not to drink tea or coffee until the meal is finished. That was 50 years ago."

After the German government, in the 1860's and 1870's, contrived to steal the secret of coal-tar chemistry which the great British chemist, Sir William Perkins, had discovered, the German chemical industry underwent a great boom. By 1900 Dr. Carl Duisenberg was toying with the idea of combining all German chemistry into one gigantic trust which would pool all "know-how," a vital factor in chemistry—and all research under a single head. By rationed clothing, anything but the simplest children's toys were out of the question. Now they can all be had—for a price. People wait for hours in long lines to buy shoes.

Contributing to the eased general food situation is the increased freedom of travel between neighboring rural areas and the city, and the fact that more persons than ever have the Soviet equivalent of "victory gardens." These are mostly plants in potatoes, which already are beginning to appear on family menus. Throughout the Soviet Union, this year, there are some 15,000,000 of these small plots, it has been estimated.

A change is also taking place in the physical appearance of Moscow. The camouflage which was added to many buildings during the days of the German advance has now almost entirely disappeared. Buildings are getting new coats of paint and, unlike last year, it is a thorough all-round job. The program for resurfacing the streets has been expanded. The main block, for example, between the Moskva Hotel and the Sovnarkom cabinet is currently being torn up.

All these find reflection in the daily lives of the people themselves. More Muscovites are active in sports. Khimki beach is regularly crowded on warm days. Tennis courts are again packed from morning to night.

The Soviet capital has a long road to travel before it can attain anything like its prewar levels of comfort and supplies, but the process of reconstruction has definitely begun.

Leacock Is Honored

The PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER

The town of Orillia is going to set up a memorial to its greatest son, Stephen Leacock, in its public library. The appropriateness of the memorial would have pleased Leacock, we are certain; we can only imagine one spot in which he would rather have a bust of himself set up in a brewery. Leacock was fond of brewers, and it gave him great satisfaction that his address was "Old Brewery Bay" for many years.

When he published "Sunshine Sketches of a Little Town" a portion of Orillia was scandalized. But as time wore on, and Leacock became famous, the local attitude changed, and pride supplanted wrath.

And now Mariposa is to honor Leacock. Old quarrels are forgotten, and for generations to come the effigy of the humorist of Old Brewery Bay will look down on the eager children of Orillia who come to read his books, and look at his manuscripts, and remember him with affection and with laughter.

A young and nervous clergyman was about to preach his first sermon. He stood in the vestry fingering his collar and wondering if his hair was tidy. He noticed there was no mirror on the wall.

"Could you get me a glass?" he whispered to the vergor.

"I'll do my best," said the man. The young clergyman waited patiently.

Presently vergor returned with something under his coat. "I managed to get a whole bottle," said the vergor, "by using your name."

Supports King's Post-War Views

Rights of Small Nations In Peace Arrangements Emphasized

By MARQUIS CHILDS

WASHINGTON—Governor Dewey, in his statement on the four-power conference, has the weight of righteousness on his side. It was a political statement, of course, intended to advance his own candidacy.

But since he gave full approval to the general objectives of the conference—a world organization for security and peace—he was well within the bounds of legitimate politics in criticizing the general outline which seems to vest absolute power in the big four.

No world structure can rest solely on power. If it has the look of brutal force and nothing else, then it will never attract mass support, even from the victorious big four, without which it cannot succeed.

A careful reading of the Dewey statement shows he concedes the necessity for "close military co-operation" among the four allies for some time after the peace. The important point he makes, however, is that time is not enough.

Interestingly enough, another politician made the same point ten days ago, but no one seems to have heard him. I refer to the speech at Ottawa of Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada.

As revealing the viewpoint of the smaller powers, that speech is considerably more useful than Dewey's political statement.

"If the new world system is conceived in terms of power alone," Prime Minister King said, "peace may be kept for a time, but not for long. If it is to last and broaden out from precedent to precedent it must embody a dynamic idea and ideal. The concentration on security and the need to marshal overwhelming force to meet threats to security is not enough."

Canada has made a very great contribution to the war, both in men and materials. The Canadians have been at war for a year and a half longer than the Russians, and for two years longer than we have. Their sacrifices in many respects bite deeper than ours.

Holland and Belgium have given as much as they possibly could, in view of the fact that their homelands were first devastated and then occupied by the Nazis. Norway has contributed a very large proportion of the wealth she held outside the country—her shipping. These junior partners feel the same doubts that Mackenzie King expressed in his Ottawa speech. In that speech the Canadian prime minister recalled how Chamberlain and Daladier sought time to rearm, at Munich, by selling out Czechoslovakia. He went on to say:

"Unless the smaller countries can play their due part in the new international system, there will be ever present the fear that great powers may settle their differences at the expense of the smaller countries. The mere existence of such a fear would in time greatly prejudice the whole scheme."

King suggested that a functional principle be devised for determining what smaller powers should sit on the new world council. Those countries which have most to contribute to the maintenance of world peace should be most frequently chosen. A yardstick, the Canadian prime minister suggested, would be the military contribution actually made during this war by the members of the United Nations.

Canada, for example, has made a very large contribution both in the field of air training and in aircraft construction. In this field she might outrank one or more of the big four. Norway's contribution in shipping and in skilled merchant seamen has been impressive.

Real security, Prime Minister King went on to say, means international organization and action in many fields—social welfare, trade, transportation, economic development. It's just here, of course, that the Republics have a platform that has about it an aura of protectionism, are weakest. Would Mr. Dewey open to trade to those smaller nations if he were elected? We'd like to hear him on that question.

International Chemists' Wars

By J. H. GRAY

After the German government, in the 1860's and 1870's, contrived to steal the secret of coal-tar chemistry which the great British chemist, Sir William Perkins, had discovered, the German chemical industry underwent a great boom. By 1900 Dr. Carl Duisenberg was toying with the idea of combining all German chemistry into one gigantic trust which would pool all "know-how," a vital factor in chemistry—and all research under a single head. By 1904 he had sold his scheme to the German government and his fellow chemists and I. G. Farben was born.

As the German geopoliticians of those days schemed and planned for world domination they came continually against a fact of life which stumped them. That fact was nitrogen. The main source of nitrates was Chile. No nation could make war without nitrates because from it alone came the basic components of dynamite, TNT and picric acid. Dependence upon Chilean nitrates was Germany's Achilles' Heel. The British and French navies could blockade the country and bring the mighty German army to its knees almost without a shot being fired.

This situation was what an early day Hitler might have called an intolerable affront to German dignity. The general staff batted the problem to the newly formed I. G. Farben. Dr. Duisenberg set one of his top assistants to work on the problem of producing nitrogen artificially from the air. That chemist was Dr. Fritz Haber.

In 1905 he began his experiments on synthetic nitrogen. With the full support of the high command, I. G. Farben expanded his experimental laboratory in 1908. In the next five years he completed his experiment. A factory capable of producing 10,000 tons of nitrogen was built. It was completed late in 1913. Germany went to war in 1914.

In the inter-war years, war making took a new turn. Mechanization came in and with it the demand for two new strategic materials—rubber and gasoline. Germany had no oil and a new war would require millions of tons of rubber. Britain, the United States, Holland and Russia controlled most of the world's oil resources. Like the Chilean nitrates, oil was far across the sea. Germany had no rubber. Britain owned most of the rubber resources and supplied the world from Malaya.

To fight another war necessitated development of synthetic gasoline and synthetic rubber. Once again the German chemists went to work. By 1926 the Farben chemists had perfected experiments for getting both from coal.

The extraction was carried out in experimental laboratories, but the problems of carrying the process to high-scale commercial production took years to work out.

While the Farben chemists

Flight Lieutenant Tai Hai Tan, DFC, the RAF's only Chinese pilot, has been killed in action in Normandy. He was known throughout the 2nd TAF as "Charlie Chan" was born of Chinese parents in Singapore, where he was a car salesman up to the outbreak of war.

After completing his flying training he was extremely disappointed when he was told that he was too old to be a fighter pilot.

For some time he was engaged on reconnaissance duties, and it was while carrying out such duties so brilliantly over the Anzio beach-head that he received the immediate award of a DFC.

She: "Did anyone ever tell you how wonderful you are?" He: "No, I don't think anyone ever did."

She: "Then I'd like to know where you get the idea."

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—Room-mates Hal Newhouser and Dizzy Trout, the Tiger's fireball twins, are confident that a portion of the world series will be staged in Detroit despite widely circulated intimations that the classic might be restricted to one park in St. Louis.

Hal and Dizzy, who have combined 20 victories apiece to date, carried the auto-city gospel to 51,376 fans at Yankee Stadium Sunday and left them impressed as the dust settled on the Yanks' double-header defeat.

Newhouser—the tall, blond, 23-year-old southpaw whose physician ordered him to quit baseball this season because of a bad heart—wasn't scheduled to do any pitching Sunday. But early in the first game, with Frank Cermore on the Detroit mound, Newhouser suggested to Manager Steve O'Neill: "Maybe I'll go down to the bull pen and warm up. If Frank gets into trouble maybe I can come and save the game for him." O'Neill said okay.

HE DID SAVE GAME

BIG HAL, who became the first major pitcher of the current campaign to register 20 victories when he beat Boston Thursday, relieved Overmire in the ninth inning Sunday—and saved the game. It was a brief but electrifying appearance. With one out and the tying run on first base, Newhouser leaped over the bullpen fence and strode rapidly across the field to the mound. This native Detroit looked like a great athlete, and he acted like one. As his spikes pawed the hill, his body seemed to radiate the fact: "I'm taking command here." The speed of his first practice pitch was so unexpectedly terrific that 51,000 fans expelled a great "oo-oo-oo-oo."

Only one batsman faced the blinding speed. Pinch Hitter Don Savage lashed out—and drove into a double play. The game was over. Detroit had won, 4-3. And friend Overmire had another victory.

Dizzy Trout won his 20th game in the nightcap. Trout, like room-mate Newhouser, also has an altitude of six feet two; but he is a righthander. He has light brown hair; and his 200 pounds give him the appearance of more brawn. He is 29 and deaf in his left ear, and has bad eyes. The accentric flinger from Terre Haute, Ind., ran into plenty of trouble, yielding 10 hits and eight walks. However, in the eighth inning, Dizzy poled a home run into the lower right-centre bleachers, with a mate aboard. This blow ultimately saved the game for Dizzy and Detroit, 9-8. It was his fourth homer of the season, and the third victory he had clinched in this fashion.

ON WAY TO PENNANT?

IN THE dressing room afterwards, fast-spouting Diz explained, "I didn't have my stuff today. The edge was off my fastball. Too much work in that recent hot weather slowed me up a little. I had to concentrate on curves or those Yanks would have mowed down my infield—and me. Look where they hit me in the wrist." He showed a bruised left wrist. "But a couple days rest in this cool weather will fix me up as good as new."

Newhouser came over to Trout's locker and congratulated him on his 20th win. Diz grinned happily and wise-cracked, "A lotta managers would like to have a roomful of what we got—eh Hal? . . . 40 games." And we'll have more, believe me. Say—this club is on its way to the pennant, now—what with the Browns' slump and Boston Hable to lose two or three players. We're hittin' now—with Wakefield back, the opposition can't make Rudy York take walks any more . . . They gotta pitch to Rudy now."

Newhouser chimed in happily. "That's right. And don't forget Doc Cramer. He's improved wonderfully in the last few weeks—lifting his batting from about .200 to around .260—and setting the grass afire in centrefield."

Jewelry Missing From City Store

Reaching through the broken glass of a show-window in the J. E. Fromant jewelry store, 10359 97 street, sometime Monday night or early Tuesday morning, a thief removed a quantity of articles of unestimated value, according to city police.

James E. Fromant, proprietor of the shop, upon arriving at the scene early Tuesday morning, stated he could not tell until a complete check had been made what had been taken, nor did he know the value of the articles.

Police found that a pane of glass on the northwest side of the store had been cut around with a glass-cutter, after which it was smashed in.

From where he stood on the pavement, police said, the thief was able to reach through the window and help himself to the articles on display.

Investigations are continuing.

Daughter Crimean Victoria Cross Winner Recalls Gallant Deeds

Father Won VC

Reminiscing Monday afternoon, when I called, was Mrs. Selena Richardson who with her husband lives at 10213 106 avenue. Bright as a newly-minted silver dollar despite her 75 years, Mrs. Richardson recalled many years of pioneering hardships and toil when she homesteaded with their family 40 miles northwest of Edmonton.

Mrs. Richardson was born in Halifax, Yorkshire, England, in 1869. She came to Canada in 1880 and settled with her family on a farm near Toronto. When 16 years old, with a sister, she went to Toronto where she completed her education. The former Miss Selena Pearson she married John Eno. In 1906 they moved west settling near Onaway.

FATHER WON VC
The charming silver haired woman whose father John Pearson rode with the famous Light Brigade at Balaklava, and winner of the Victoria Cross therein and who helped storm the fort at Gwalior during the Indian Mutiny three quarters of a century ago, recalled many interesting experience which her heroic father recounted in his later years. She treasures documents, telling of recognitions and medals he received for his bravery. She pointed out a picture of him in uniform of the Eight Royal British Hussars, hanging on the wall.

Mrs. Richardson married for the second time in 1918. She has written articles for various publications and also has written several poems. Mother of five children, four of whom are living, 12 grandchildren and nine great grandchildren, she proudly showed photos and snapshots of her family, one a photo of a great grandchild recently christened in a hand-made christening robe 100 years old, which is still in her possession.

MADE BY NATIVES

The robe was made by the natives of India, and given to her mother when her parents lived in India in 1854. At that time her father was on active service campaigning a sequel to the Crimean war in which the famous battle of Balaklava took place.

She also pointed with pride to two oil paintings recently received from a brother, Frank, in Los Angeles, who is 78 years old. The paintings are scenes of the Redwood Forest. Mrs. Richardson said she had written her brother telling him of the many American buildings being built here of redwood, and this was his answer to her letter, a picture of the actual forest from which the wood is taken.

A sister, Mrs. Mary Baker, lives in Toronto. Mrs. Richardson's surviving children are: Arthur Eno, Nordeges; Mrs. Bert Rutherford, Vancouver; Mrs. John Streich, Drumheller; and Mrs. William Smith, Los Angeles.

Flower Display Draws Entries Two Provinces

Indicating to some extent the interest of Edmontonians and ever persons in such widely-separated points as Innisfail, Mac-distry and Wilkie, Sask., in progressive gardening, the annual Edmonton Flower and Vegetable show got under way Tuesday with about 1,000 entries as compared to 21 entries at the first Strathcona Horticultural Show in 1897.

The show is being held in the Market Building.

The great number of varieties in vegetables and flowers is another indication of the steps forward being made. It is reported by old-timers of Edmonton that when they first came here in the early 1900's that they were told the only things they could grow were potatoes, turnips and cabbage, although the latter was still of dubious nature.

Proving the old saying "where there's a will there's a way," the horticultural show this year displays 30 different vegetables and 25 fruits.

IN ONE CLASS
There are 450 entries in the gladioli class alone. These entries came from all points in Alberta and from Wilkie, Sask. The quality of the "glads" is better than last year, it is reported, even with the unfavorable weather conditions prevailing. Some of the "glads" stand about four and one half feet high.

Fruit of all varieties grown here are on display, including crab apples, plums, cherries and all types of berries.

T. Howsley, city weed inspector, has an educational section of foliage plants, fruits and noxious weeds, as well as diseased vegetables that are occurring commonly in the gardens.

OTHER FEATURES

Other features of interest are the honey comb and bees exhibit, flat

DOORS OPEN

The show opened to the public at 2 p.m., Tuesday afternoon and continues to 10:30 p.m. in the evening and from 9:30 a.m. Wednesday to 10:30 p.m. The show will be officially opened at 8:30 p.m. by Hon. DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Frankness Is Often A Liability, Not Asset

Unnecessary Truths That Hurt Others Are Too Often Voiced by Those Taking Pride in Veracity; People Should Watch What They Say

DEAR MISS DIX: Why is it that I just can't hit it off with a group of women? I am a matron 30 odd, have had a good education, have been a successful business woman as well as a home-maker. I can sit in with 50 men and pass orders on them, have their admiration and respect, and be treated as a pal or as a mother, but put me with five strange women and I can't even thank them out. I am simply not liked by women, yet I want women friends. But, no matter how hard I try, no go. I don't go over. Maybe it is because I am too darn frank. I tell them exactly what I think.

Answer: You have diagnosed your trouble yourself when you say that you think that the reason you are not popular with women is because you are "too darn frank," and that you tell them exactly what you think of them. No person who does that is ever popular with either sex, because men are just as allergic to the truth about themselves as women are.

A mistake that practically all people make who pride themselves upon always speaking the truth and being perfectly frank is that they tell so many unnecessary truths that hurt, and say so many unkind things that would be far better left unsaid. A young girl said to me not long ago that she felt like a hypocrite if she kept silent when she differed with anyone, or failed to express her opinion, but she was wrong in that. You don't have to argue with people unless a moral issue is involved.

I think that if you would only temper the truth to the occasion in dealing with women and say pleasant things to them when you can honestly do so, and be chary of criticizing them, and if you will show them that you like them and want them to like you, you will have no trouble in making women friends.

DOROTHY DIX.

SECOND WIFE

DEAR MISS DIX: My trouble is that I married a widower and I love him and could be very happy with him except that he is so much more married to the lady out in the cemetery than he is to me that I have begun to feel that I am haunted by her ghost. He spends all of his time talking about her. She was perfection in every way. She hadn't a fault or a shortcoming. Yet she was sick nearly all the time and he had to do all of the housework as well as make a living. He was always broke, paying doctors and drugstore bills. She always had to have her people around her.

Now, I am much younger, I have a good job and bring in much needed money. I have helped him get a start again and I inflict no in-laws on him. Yet she is IT and I am nothing, and I am fed up with hearing about her. Please warn other girls not to marry widowers. There is nothing you can do when you have a dead rival.

NUMBER TWO WIFE

ANSWER: A lot of men who were not particularly fond of their first wives, nor congenial with them, canonize them as soon as they are tucked away in their graves. That would not matter if only they would keep their illusions to themselves, but it is certainly a brutal thing to always be throwing Number One in Number Two's teeth, so to speak. And I wonder that any woman has the patience to endure it.

Perhaps if you will tell your husband how you feel about this and that he has to decide whether he prefers a dead wife to a live one, you would make him realize what a stupid, blundering idiot he is, and cut out his panegyrics over the deceased.

HELPING OTHERS

DEAR MISS DIX: Is it true that when we place people under obligations to us by helping them when they need help that they end by disliking us? If so, why?

MARY S.

ANSWER: Such is generally the case, but not always, and the reason for it is that for people to be under obligations to us makes them inferior to us, and they can't stand that. It takes more generosity of soul to be a receiver than it does to be a giver.

AMERICA IS NOT MORE INTERESTED IN SPORTS THAN IN THE ARTS

Many critics falsely accuse the people of America of being "sport minded," and having little interest in the arts. Figures show that the American people spend only about half as much money annually on all kinds of sports combined as is spent upon music in the form of operas, symphony concerts, musical instruments, music lessons, phonograph records, etc. In addition, millions are spent on drama and art. America is certainly much more interested in the arts than in sports.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

PLEASE PASS (UP) THE SUGAR

According to an estimate based on federal government statistics the per capita consumption of sugar in the United States was 8 pounds a month in 1939, 7½ pounds a month in 1942, 6½ pounds a month in 1944. Come, come now, folks, you need not turn away from sugar like that just because I prefer a saccharin tablet to a big spoonful of sugar to sweeten my coffee.

Too much delectable carbohydrate is my chief dietary sin—refined carbohydrate—things made of refined white flour and refined white sugar. Nearly all of the over-eating we Americans, rich and poor, illiterate and educated, old and young, thin and fat do is in the field of the refined carbohydrates.

Not that the 90 or 100 calories cancelled by the use of saccharin in place of sugar for sweetening coffee matters in my pursuit of happiness, but by alternating periods of observation with and without this substitute for sugar I have concluded that this use of saccharin improves my nutrition.

It is not that refined white sugar or refined white flour are the many things good to eat made from them is in itself harmful in any way. The reason why our high per capita consumption of these manufactured food products should worry every one concerned with national health and physical fitness and every one concerned about his own personal health and efficiency.

As Dr. Ray M. Moore of San Bernardino points out (J. A. M. A. July 6, '44) white sugar "dilutes with calories"—it supplies energy, of course just as so much potato or cornstarch does (not more and not more quickly, though, but the 400

McKenney On Bridge

By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY

Here is another interesting hand on counting tricks. This time it is the declarer who must count his losers. The first thing to take into consideration on this hand is the bidding. West cannot have any diamonds, because he took his partner out of a three-diamond bid that had been doubled, and he did not open a diamond. East did not overtake the heart queen and a second heart followed, which South ruffed.

♠ 8 5	♥ 10 9	♦ 10 8	♣ 10 9
♠ 7 6	♥ 8 7	♦ 7 6	♣ 8 7
♠ 5 4 3 2	♥ 5 4 3 2	♦ 5 4 3 2	♣ 5 4 3 2
♠ 4 3 2	♥ 4 3 2	♦ 4 3 2	♣ 4 3 2
♠ 3 2	♥ 3 2	♦ 3 2	♣ 3 2
♠ 2	♥ 2	♦ 2	♣ 2
♠ 1	♥ 1	♦ 1	♣ 1

The correct play now is to lead a low spade toward dummy. East wins the eight with the ten and returns the king of diamonds. Declarer plays the ace and West trumps with the jack of spades. Now all West can do is to give declarer a sluff and ruff, or lead a club—in which case South wins in dummy, leads a small trump and picks up West's king. Then he can go over to dummy and discard all his losers on the good clubs.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Most of the letters these days have to do with poor sleeping habits. There is evidently a country-full of small insomniacs.

It is harder for children to sleep when it is hot, when it stays light so long, when there are the myriad noises of children in the street for so long in the evening.

Children rest uneasily when, for any reason, they are uncomfortable. It may be a poor bed, too much or too little covering, too much excitement before bedtime, too little to eat at the night meal, or too heavy a night meal.

Lengthy afternoon naps, which sometimes please mother because they relieve her of the work and anxiety of taking care of the active runabout are responsible for refusal to go to bed at an early hour, or for the child's inability to sleep the night through.

Temporary reasons for sleeplessness may be alluded to a cold or other illness or when these are in the making. Many a parent has noticed that when the child develops a cold it was preceded by a night of unusual wakefulness.

The cutting of a tooth may be preceded by a night or two of fretful sleeplessness.

But when all of these are enumerated and accounted for, the usual reason for chronic sleeplessness has most often to do with the way a child is being fed.

Mrs. J. W. says her child is six months old but doesn't sleep well. "He has 28 ounces of milk a day, two tablespoons of cereal, half a can of baby vegetables and a little custard and fruit. I put him to bed at 9 o'clock and he doesn't go to sleep for an hour. His formula is 13 ounces of evaporated milk and 20 of water and 4 tablespoons of malt sugar. I would appreciate any information."

Let's add a little more evaporated milk to the formula, up to 16 ounces perhaps, and increase the malt sugar to at least 6 level tablespoons.

You failed to mention either orange juice or vitamin D in any form and no diet is complete without those additions. At least 3 to 4 ounces of juice daily and whatever vitamin D your doctor prescribes. With those additions and an earlier bedtime and shorter naptime, I think your baby's sleeplessness should end.

Our new leaflet, "Milk Formulas and Early Feeding" may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Myrtle Meyer Eldred, in care of this newspaper.

LIPTON'S TEA

AN EMPIRE TEA THAT'S FIT FOR A KING!

Enid Flesher, FO. J. Sheppard Married at St. Faith's Church

Tall standards of gladioli and sweetpeas decorated St. Faith's church Monday at 7 p.m. for the marriage of Miss Enid Flesher, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Flesher, and FO. J. Sheppard, R.C.A.F., only son of Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Sheppard of Daugh, formerly of Didsbury. The Rev. L. M. Watts officiated at the ceremony.

Entering the church on the arm of her father the bride was graceful in her floor length gown of white lace over taffeta, fashioned with a full skirt, long fitted bodice, sweetheart neckline, and long fitted sleeves ending in lily points over the wrists. Her finger-tip length veil of illusion tulle was held to her head with white gladioli. She carried a white prayer book with white sweetpeas.

Mrs. K. A. Flesher, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron-of-honor, and Miss Willa Sheppard sister of the bridegroom was bridesmaid.

They wore identically styled gowns of point d'esprit, styled with full skirts, fitted bodices, sweetheart neckline, and short sleeves. They wore long lace mittens and dutch caps of point d'esprit. Mrs. Flesher's frock was in pale mauve and Miss Sheppard's was pale yellow. Mrs. Flesher carried yellow gladioli and Miss Sheppard carried mauve gladioli.

Best man was FO Glen Stewart, RCAF of Boundary Bay, B.C., and ushering the guests to their places in the church were Pte. Ben Peterson, RCAF, and Kenneth A. Flesher, brother of the bride.

WEDDING MUSIC

Miss Ethel Smith played the wedding music, and Miss Opal

After the ceremony, a reception for 60 guests was held in the drawing room at the Macdonald hotel.

Mrs. Flesher, receiving with the bride party, was dressed in a Queen's blue floor length frock, made with a full skirt, fitted bodice, V neckline and bishop sleeves. Her hat was a large picture model of blue felt. Her accessories were also in blue. She wore a shoulder corsage of Tallman roses.

Mrs. Sheppard chose a dress-maker suit of Copenhagen blue, worn with a large black felt hat and black accessories. Her corsage was of pink roses.

The bride's table was set in white linen centered with a three-tiered wedding cake.

William McLeod proposed the toast to the bride.

Mrs. D. E. Peterson and Mrs. William McLeod presided at the tea table.

The National Chapter, Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire has published a booklet, "From Kith to Kin" for presentation in the Old Country to the wives of servicemen who have married abroad.

The book is a chatty new way welcome from Canadian women to those of other lands who will shortly come to Canada.

The writing and preparation of the publication was a voluntary contribution to the Order by a member, Dr. Charlotte Whitton, C.B.E., in collaboration with members of the National executive committee. It has been financed entirely by the Order from its own funds.

COAT-OF-ARMS

The cover of the booklet has on it the Canadian coat-of-arms in color and on the back cover the emblem of the Order.

Her Royal Highness, the Princess Alice, Countess of Athlone sends a message of welcome to all British women intending to start a home in Canada.

There is a picture of the most sacred of all Canadian shrines, the altar in the chapel of remembrance in the Peace Tower, the memorial to the dead of the Great War 1914-18. The altar is the gift to Canada of the people of the United Kingdom.

DETAILED DESCRIPTIONS

The booklet includes detailed descriptions of Canadian accents, money, trains, size and population, cities, homes, shopping, clubs, racial strains, system of government, history, religions, schools, courts and legislation, health and welfare.

A picture of the Peace Tower, Parliament Buildings, Ottawa, on Christmas Day, is in the centre of the publication and there follows a story of the Canadian year—spring, summer, autumn and winter.

A story of the geography of the country is told under the headings of the Maritimes, Ontario and Quebec, the Prairies, and the coast, British Columbia.

With the book is a splendid map in color of the Dominion of Canada.

A goldfinch, state bird of Iowa, built its nest on a tall corn stalk.

Vegetables taste better, cooked right!

Use the fresh vegetables that are available now, ingeniously. Make them more enjoyable, for the whole family! Modern methods save your time, and make them taste better. Here are some Bureau-tested hints:

POSSIBLE CORN
Boiled corn-on-the-cob rarely requires more than 10 minutes' cooking time, often less. Cook only a few ears at a time, in a large amount of boiling water.

BOILED CORN ON THE COB takes about the same cooking time (put the husked corn about 3 inches from the broiler unit, and brush with butter from time to time).

COOK THEM UNCOVERED in a small amount of water, from 10 to 25 minutes. There should be hardly any water left when the peas are finished. Toss in a sprig of mint for special flavor.

PEAS 'N' CORN SUCCESSION Cook peas till tender, cut boiled or uncooked corn from cob, make in butter, serve combined in equal parts.

TOMATOES
Boil halves of unpeeled tomatoes with cut side up (rack 4 inches from broiling unit); after 5 minutes, dot with butter and season with salt and pepper; broil 5 minutes.

Picnic Platters

Swift's Table-Ready Meats are the perfect answer to the picnic problem

Very few of us have either the time or the inclination these days to make the elaborate preparation our parents considered essential for a picnic. And yet the occasional meal out of doors—even if it be only in one's backyard—is good for health; appetite and morale too. So if you feel the picnic urge coming on, just slip over to your neighborhood store and make your selection from the wide array there of Swift's Premium Table-Ready Meats. Add a crisp lettuce or two, a bottle of home made pickles; a paper container of potato salad—you can buy it or make your own, see panel—and a loaf of bread . . . and you're all set for an enjoyable out-door meal with no more fuss 'n' feathers.

Martha Logan

P.S.—Don't forget the salt!

MARTHA LOGAN'S POTATO SALAD

- 1 cup celery finely cut
- 1/2 cup minced onion
- 1 cup French Dressing
- 4 cups diced cooked potatoes
- Salt and pepper

Put chopped onions and celery to stand one hour in French Dressing. Add cooked potatoes and toss ingredients lightly . . . taste and season further if required.

Armed Forces Total Intake Is Now 938,318

OTTAWA, Aug. 22.—(CP)—Intake from the nine provinces into the Canadian armed forces from the start of the war to March 31, 1944, totalled 913,092, or 36.9 per cent. of the estimated 2,474,000 men in the military 18-to-45 years age groups, it was disclosed yesterday by the War-time Information Board.

In addition 15,226 was taken in outside Canada, thus bringing the total intake to 938,318.

The intake figure does not take discharges into consideration and must not be confused with the total strength of the armed forces, 756,900, June 30.

PROVINCIAL TOTALS

Previous figures have been broken down by military districts, but yesterday's were the first released by provinces. They showed Nova Scotia with a total intake of 56,128 of its 123,000 military age males leading the list with a percentage of 45.6. Quebec with a total of 154,503 of its 689,000 military age males trailed with a percentage of 22.1.

Behind Nova Scotia came following provinces: British Columbia, 44.4 per cent.; New Brunswick, 43.6 per cent.; Manitoba, 43.5 per cent.; Ontario, 43.3 per cent.; Alberta, 40.1 per cent.; Saskatchewan, 38.9 per cent.; Prince Edward Island, 38.4 per cent.

Six Hospital Cars To Be Delivered Early in Autumn

MONTREAL, Aug. 22.—Six air-conditioned hospital cars, of the type which Defence Minister J. L. Ralston termed as nearly perfect as it can be, during an official inspection at Ottawa, will be delivered to the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps by the Canadian Pacific Railway from Angus Shops here in early autumn.

They will bring to 10 the total of these hospitals on wheels provided by the C.P.R. for four hospital cars already are in operation. Each of the six cars being converted from compartment-observation cars will have 28 beds, the same as the C.P.R. car which brought forth the defence minister's high praise when he went through it at the capital last month.

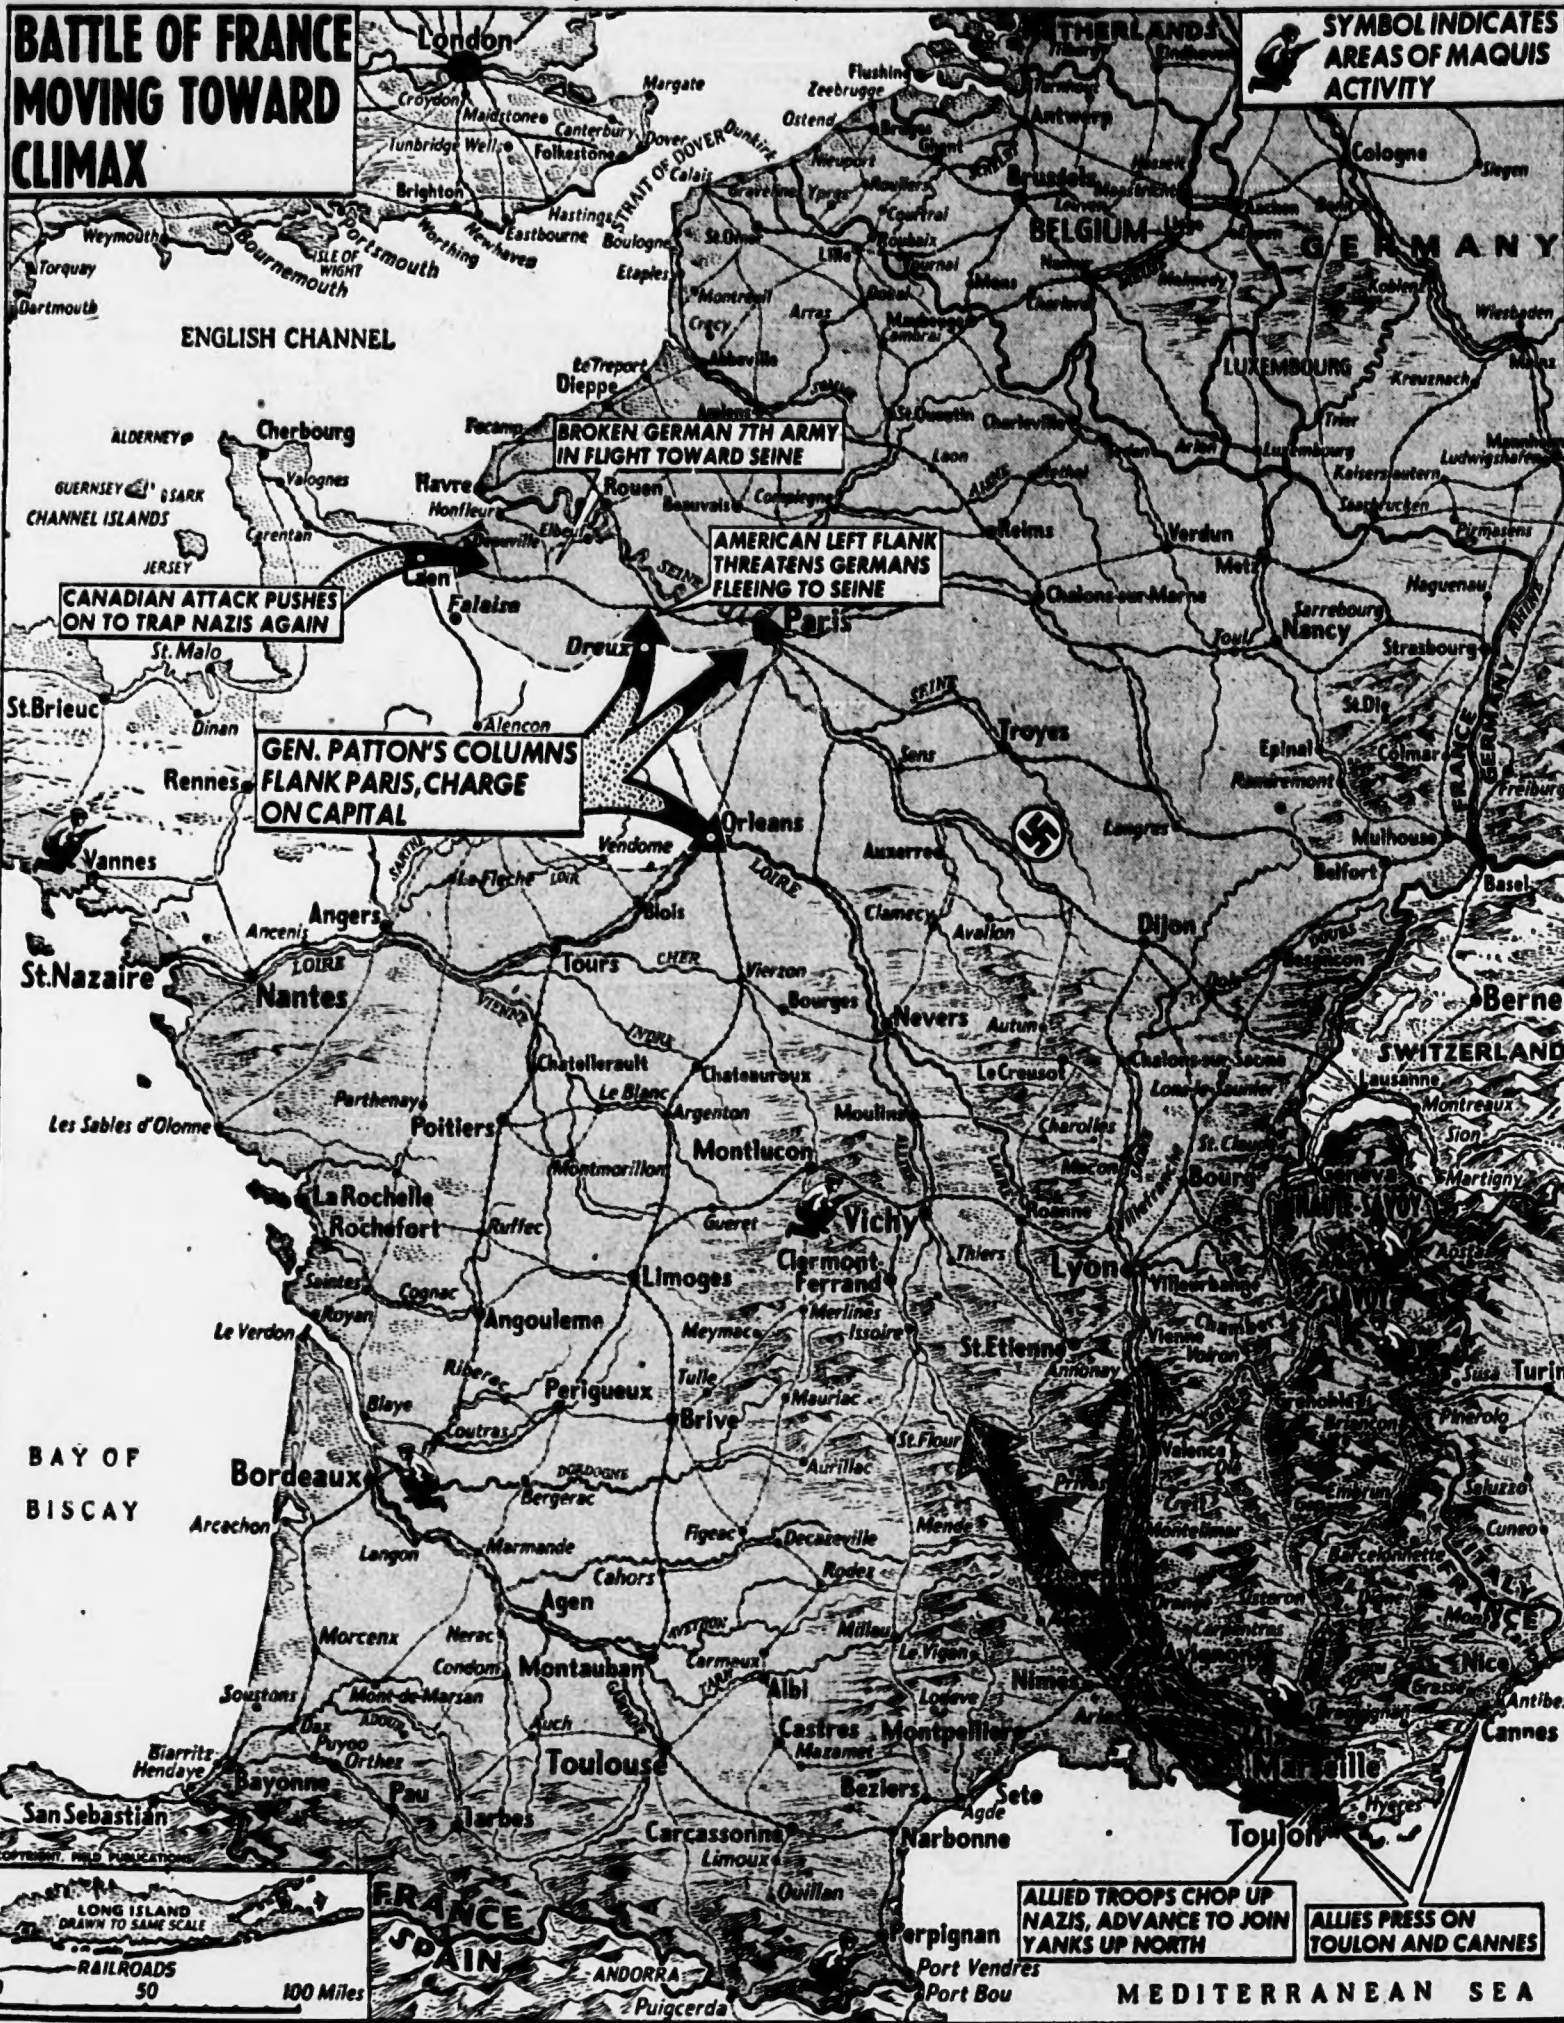

Large Municipal Units Considered In Saskatchewan

REGINA, Aug. 22.—(CP)—Reorganization of rural municipalities into larger units is being considered by the Saskatchewan government according to Municipal Affairs Minister J. H. Brockelbank.

A committee will be set up shortly to look into the possibilities for reorganization of the municipalities. Larger municipal units would be able to obtain modern road machinery without the high initial capital cost and would fit better into the projected health unit scheme and other planned services, said the minister.

Larger municipal units would also result in some saving in administration costs to the provincial department of municipal affairs it is expected.

"Killed" by Shell

High-Scoring Canuck Tank Finally Destroyed by Foe

By ROSS MUNRO
WITH THE CANADIAN 1ST
ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 22.—
(CP)—The "Comtesse Du Feu" has been killed by the Germans at last.

The Comtesse was a tank. A good and sturdy Sherman tank with a 17-pounder gun mounted in her turret. Lieut. Gordie Henry of Montreal and his crew of three were the crew in this tank they had named the "Comtesse Du Feu" and she went through one action after another and rolled up a score of 10 enemy tanks destroyed—among the top scores in Canadian tanks in France.

The Comtesse served with the 1st Hussars from London, Ont., and she clanked her way from the beaches at Courseulles through many a torrid battle. Gordie and his crew on the Comtesse at one time knocked off five German Panthers with five shots. They called them the "Panther Killers." They loved the Comtesse as tank crews can love a tank. They felt she could go on forever. That they would take her into Paris.

Then after the battle of Caen, where the Comtesse destroyed two Panthers to take her score to 10, Gordie and his crew were given a brief rest. Another crew took over the Comtesse. She went over the Orne into new battles and down by Verriers, south of Caen. A German 88MM gun eyed the Comtesse. It put a shell right into her and she blew up and died.
